

The avalanche broke on Friday, February 3rd. It was likely a natural slide that failed on a thick layer of facets at the ground. Wind-loads from the southwest and south made hard slabs up to three feet thick. The slide ran 800 feet vertical (measured) and estimated to be 300 feet wide. Photo: GNFAAC

Advisory Region
Lionhead Range
Lionhead Range, 2012-02-05